This program allows students to tailor their emphasis in psychology or education with another area of interest such as music, religion, natural science or business. This degree will prepare students for entrance into a graduate program (Master's in Counseling, MFT, LPCC or Psychology Doctorate), or prepare them to apply for NAD teaching certification for elementary education.

• In the US, 1 in 5 adults suffers from a debilitating mental health disorder in any given year. Furthermore, children in public school settings are frequently exposed to many unhealthy points of view; Satan's battle is often in the mind. We prepare future counselors and/or teachers to help fight in the battle for the minds in the Great Controversy.

In addition:
• Receive quality Scripture-based education with low student to teacher ratios
• Explore multiple fields of psychology & education, including understanding thoughts and behaviors and how powerful they can be
• Shadow real counselors working in depression and anxiety recovery or experience student teaching
• Conduct psychological research and present at research conferences such as Western Psychological Association
• Receive training in classroom behavior management from a Biblical perspective.
Christian Counseling and NAD Elementary Education are noble professions, but they are not the only way to serve the Lord with this program. The beauty of an interdisciplinary degree is tailoring it to student career goals and life mission.

Other career* options include (but are not limited to):

- Criminal psychology: Work in adult psychopathology and treatment, the juvenile justice system, or aid the criminal justice system.
- Industrial organizational or business psychology: Combine psychology and business to pursue one of the fastest growing fields in psychology. Work in human resources management, employee training, development.
- Missionary: Understand culture and education to work as an overseas missionary in education.
- School counselor: Combine psychology and education and provide academic and social-emotional competencies to all students through a school counseling program.

*These careers may require a Master’s degree

Weimar Institute:
Creating leaders of significance who will, through their work, their research, their talents and influence, progress the work of God and bless humanity.

“The opportunities to interact and work with the faculty, publish research, and have close teacher mentoring at Weimar are astounding. To be in a department that relates to my career, such as psychology and music, has been such a blessing.” Jonathan Emerson

“To be an effective Christian-based counselor, one must study the life of Christ—the ultimate counselor. This program comprehensively explores the research and theories of modern psychology through the lens of the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy.” Karolina Mikulaskova

Weimar admits students of any race, color, national and ethnic origin to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the school. Weimar does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national and ethnic origin in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other school-administered programs.
